“Legal Gender Recognition in Turkey” Article (January 29, 2022)

The article by Prof. Ulaş Sunata, Prof. Aslı Makaracı, Assoc. Prof. Dr. Seda Öktem Çevik was published in the International Journal of Discrimination and the Law. The study deals with the regime of legal gender recognition in Türkiye first reveals critical reciprocating historical developments in national legal regulations for affirming trans identities. Then, the recent conditions laid down by the 2017 Constitutional Court judgments stating that transgender people do not require permanent sterilization anymore but require sex reassignment surgery for legal gender change are evaluated. Moreover, this paper explains that while the jurisprudence of the European Court of Human Rights partly reflects the current Turkish legislation, it is not a big step for transgender rights.

“My memory is in Circassian: Circassians Narrate about Being A Circassian” Book (2022)

Prof. Ulaş Sunata met with Circassians from different age and gender groups and rural and urban regions with varying political opinions. They reflected upon their personal perceptions of what it is to be a Circassian. “Hafızam Çerkesçe” was born out of the TUBİTAK project that was implemented in 2014 and was based on intense field work and oral history study.

“Feminization of Refugee: Intersectionality, Solidarity, Resistance” Article (25 February 2022)

The article by the founding director of BAUMUS Prof. Dr. Ulaş Sunata and BAUMUS student assistant Selin Özsoy was published in the International Migration. This study aims to examine a possible change of feminist civil society pertaining to inclusivity with a particular interest in violence. It evaluates state-civil society relations, coping mechanisms with domestic violence and solidarity patterns with female refugees.
